

Gary Reichmuth

Gary Reichmuth is the General Manager for the Aerospace and Defense sector at Texas Instruments. He has held the role of GM for their A&D and HiRel businesses for the last 6 years. He started his career at Texas Instruments as a design engineer and after receiving his MBA from the University of Texas-Dallas transitioned into business leading roles. He has lead a number of business units including Product lines in Audio and HiRel and larger business organization in Audio and Imaging products. As the HiRel product line manager he re-established TI's development on Space grade parts and now expanded that footprint to multiple product lines developing parts that are QMLV qualified.
