

Junjie Xiong

Junjie Xiong is the head of AI researcher at Global ETS, where he is responsible for research and applying Artificial intelligence method in electronic component authenticity via electrical signal measurement.

Before joining Global ETS, he worked as a senior software development engineer for several Internet technology companies. He is currently a Ph.D. student at the university of south Florida, studying AI and Cybersecurity.

He received his B.S. degree from Beijing University of Posts and Telecommunications in 2012 and his M.S. degree from Nanjing University of Posts and Telecommunications in 2019.